The College of Education at Kansas State University produces more teachers than any of the other 24 teacher training programs in the state and graduates nearly 400 teachers per year.

16% of the student body is composed of multicultural students. There are currently 44 students from 20 countries enrolled.

1,130 Undergraduate Students
802 Graduate Students

87% of undergraduate students are from Kansas.
71% of graduate students are from Kansas.

8% of the student body is affiliated with the military.

20% of undergraduate students are first generation college attendees.

In the last 5 years: $2.76 million in scholarships awarded.

Education-related student organizations, including Call Me MISTER, which supports men of color pursuing a teaching degree.

1:1 iPad to student ratio during professional coursework.

Almost 70% of candidates student teach at a distance, outside of the Manhattan/Ogden School District.

99% of new graduates are employed, enrolled in graduate/professional school or further education, or are occupied in other non-career activities.

Approximately 8% of the student body is affiliated with the military.