ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Nondegree Status. In some cases, a student may wish to take a course(s) prior to being admitted in a degree program. In these cases, a person must be admitted as a nondegree student. No more than nine credit hours earned as a nondegree student may be applied toward an advanced degree. However, successful completion of any hours taken as a nondegree student does not guarantee admission into the program. Nondegree students are not eligible for financial assistance. A faculty advisor is not assigned to nondegree students.

Financial Aid. Questions about financial assistance should be directed to the Office of Student Financial Assistance, 104 Fairchild Hall, Manhattan, KS 66506, 785-532-6420, finaid@k-state.edu. For information regarding financial aid, you may go to www.k-state.edu/sfa.

policies and procedures about advising, the program of study, enrollment, transfer credits, the final oral/written exam, required approval forms, and other aspects of the graduate program.

Major Professor and Supervisory Committee. Once admitted to the program, an advisor (often called the major professor) is assigned. In consultation with the major professor, the student selects three additional graduate faculty members, whose interests support the student’s work, to serve on the supervisory committee. The student’s supervisory committee must have at least one member from another discipline. The supervisory committee guides the student in the development of a program of study and in the formulation of research and clinical experiences. Once the student successfully completes the preliminary examination and is admitted to candidacy, an additional faculty member is appointed by the Graduate School to chair the oral defense of the student’s doctoral dissertation.
Program Description for the PhD in Counselor Education and Supervision

The program's conceptual framework emphasizes development of knowledgeable, ethical, caring decision makers within the context of groups and institutions, client development and learning, and guidance and counseling of students leading to theory-driven and research-guided practice in school counseling. Curricular experiences include human growth and development, appraisal, research and program evaluation, professional orientation, and foundations.

The program is primarily designed to prepare individuals to assume academic positions in universities. The program also prepares individuals to assume positions as guidance directors for school districts or to function as counselors in educational settings.

Students are provided skills in teaching, assessment, supervision, research, and intervention. In addition, the program seeks to enhance students’ knowledge, skills, and application of ethical standards. As counselors or educators, students are prepared to provide preventive, developmental, supervisory/clinical, and/or consultative counseling or treatment to populations experiencing life adjustment difficulties.

Students are given preparation in the following four areas:

1. Academic or didactic: Areas of study include human behavior and personality, theories of human nature, counseling theory and practice, psychological testing and measurement, career development, research, ethics, and aspects of the student’s intended employment setting.

2. Experiential: Courses include components that allow students not only to build skills in counseling, group work, working with diverse populations, leadership and citizenship roles, but also to engage in self-exploration. In addition, students are encouraged to engage in further personal development activities to better understand themselves as individuals and as helping professionals, to increase their skills in interpersonal relationships, and to contribute to professional groups.

3. Supervised practice in counseling: A supervised experience with a variety of clients is a crucial aspect of preparation. It is through such practice that the student gains experience in applying the knowledge and skills acquired in other courses.

4. Internship and teaching experiences: The doctoral-level internship consists of 600 clock hours including supervised experiences in clinical settings, research, teaching, and supervision. Students provide a minimum of 240 hours of direct service under the weekly supervision of a site supervisor and a faculty member. The internship includes activities that are typical for a regularly employed professional in the professional setting. In addition, group supervision is incorporated into the weekly schedule. The supervised experience also includes teaching experience and other activities of a regularly employed professional in the setting. By obtaining extensive and systematic supervised experience in a setting consistent with students’ career goals, students are enabled to better develop both skills and an appropriate professional identity. Students enroll for a total of six credit hours, generally across two semesters.
In both the practicum and internship, students receive one hour per week of individual supervision and two hours of small group supervision by qualified professionals. Students are required to have liability insurance coverage.
