

Application deadline is May 1st.

Indigenous Education Leadership Graduate Certificate cohort

As we approach the completion of Kansas State University's (K-State) first Indigenous Education Leadership Graduate Certificate cohort, we are happy to announce we are accepting applications for our second cohort starting July 2023! This 12 hour program is all online/ZOOM and can be completed in one year, while students will work with, and alongside, other educators serving Indigenous students nationwide.

The program helps prepare educators to work in the very unique educational leadership positions found across Indian Country (Tribal education departments and/or programs employees, Title VI Indian Education coordinators, Johnson O'Malley, BIE, etc.). It is open to practicing teachers and leaders and can be paired with K-State's Adult Learning and Leadership and Educational Leadership master's and doctoral degrees. More information can be found on K-State's website: <https://buff.ly/3waDh9W>

Courses (12 credit hours)

- EDLEA 710 – Fundamental Indigenous Histories and Philosophies in Education - Dr. Cornel Pewewardy
- EDLEA 720 – Self-Determination, Sovereignty, and Systems of Indigenous Education
- EDLEA 730 – Leadership, Advocacy, and Action in Indigenous Education
- EDLEA 740 – Applied Project in Educational Leadership for Indigenous Populations

For questions about the program, please contact Kelly Berry, Indigenous Initiatives Research Associate, kdberry@ksu.edu.

