Nondegree Status. In some cases, a student may wish to take a course(s) prior to being admitted in a degree program. In these cases, a person must be admitted as a nondegree student. No more than nine credit hours earned as a nondegree student may be applied toward an advanced degree. However, successful completion of any hours taken as a nondegree student does not guarantee admission into the program. Nondegree students are not eligible for financial assistance. A faculty advisor is not assigned to nondegree students.

Financial Aid. Questions about financial assistance should be directed to the Office of Student Financial Assistance, 104 Fairchild Hall, Manhattan, KS 66506, 785-532-6420, finaid@k-state.edu. For information regarding financial aid, you may go to www.k-state.edu/sfa.

Graduate Assistantships. A limited number of graduate assistantships are available in the College of Education. Go to www.coe.ksu.edu/grad/assistantships.html for detailed information and application procedures. It is helpful to talk with the appropriate department chair as early as possible to learn of assistantships available in the department.

Graduate Handbook. Once admitted, students should become familiar with the Graduate Handbook at <http://www.k-state.edu/grad/graduate-handbook/>. This handbook includes policies and procedures about advising, the program of study, enrollment, transfer credits, the final oral/written exam, required approval forms, and other aspects of the graduate program.

Advisor and Program of Study. Once admitted to the program, an advisor is assigned. The advisor assists the student in developing the program of courses the student will take to earn the master's degree. A program of study listing the courses the student intends to take is submitted to the Graduate School before completion of nine hours (part-time students) or during the second semester (full-time students).

Programs in Special Education

Kansas State University prepares special education teachers at the graduate level in a cross categorical program with two areas of specialization: high incidence special education and low incidence special education.

KANSAS ENDORSEMENTS IN SPECIAL EDUCATION

Each area of specialization (High Incidence Disabilities and Low Incidence Disabilities) has a separate course sequence designed by the College of Education. These areas have been approved by the Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) and the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE). The special education endorsement can be granted to a person who holds a valid Kansas teaching license.

A special education endorsement can be met without completion of the master's degree. However, most students choose to complete the master's degree while working toward full endorsement. Completing the master's degree is recommended by the special education faculty. Students who intend to complete a master's degree should apply for admission to the master's program before completing nine hours of graduate coursework.

Two types of endorsements:

Students pursuing a master's degree in special education are required to complete requirements for full endorsement in High Incidence Disabilities. However, when feasible, it is advisable to plan master's programs that also lead to Low Incidence Disabilities special education endorsement. A minimum of 30 hours of academic credit comprising an appropriate program of study must be approved early in the student's master's degree program by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate School. The minimum requirements presented on the following pages are helpful guidelines but students must consult their assigned advisors to plan an appropriate program of study.

- 1. Full Endorsement. Full endorsement is granted to the applicant by the Kansas State Department of Education upon completion of the required sequence of courses and submission of a qualifying score on the Praxis II exam for the endorsement field.
- 2. Provisional Endorsement.
 - Y Provisional endorsement is possible in the High Incidence Disabilities area.
 - Y Provisional endorsement is for a two-year period and may be renewed for an additional two-year period. At the time of renewal, the candidate must have completed 50% of the courses remaining for full endorsement. The entire sequence of courses for the full endorsement must be completed within four years.
 - Y For provisional endorsement, a candidate must complete the following courses and practicum:

EDSP 711	Characteristics of Exceptionalities (3 credits)
EDSP 742	Intervention: Emotional and Behavior Disorders (3 credits)
EDSP 743	Intervention: Academic Disabilities (3 credits)
EDSP 785	Practicum I

Requirements for obtaining provisional endorsement when in the bachelor's program

Students in the elementary or secondary teacher education programs may select designated courses to fulfill the requirements for provisional endorsement in High Incidence Disabilities special education while completing the undergraduate degree. The programs are the Quick Start Program (for elementary education majors) and the Step Ahead Program (for secondary education majors).

Individuals completing one of these early start programs will be eligible for provisional endorsement in High Incidence Disabilities special education after accepting a special education teaching position. The provisional endorsement allows the candidate to work as a special education teacher while taking the remaining courses and practicum for the full special education endorsement.

It is very important to talk with your advisor about your interest in provisional endorsement due to the complexity of the programs and additional considerations about enrollment, the practicum, and other related issues.

The EDSP 785 Practicum should be taken for graduate credit for both the Quick Start and the Step Ahead programs if your eventual goal is to earn a Master's degree. If you have questions, please contact a faculty member in Special Education.

The Quick Start Program (for elementary education majors)

Required Courses:

- Y EDSP 509 Introduction to Autism Spectrum Disorder
- Y EDSP 711 Characteristics of Exceptional Individuals
- Y EDSP 742 Interventions: Emotional and Behavioral Disorders
- Y EDSP 743 Interventions: Academic Disabilities

Practicum taken During the Professional Semester:

- Y EDSP 785 Practicum I (take for graduate credit; completed during the professional semester)

The Step Ahead Program (for secondary education majors)

Required Courses:

- Y EDSP 711 Characteristics of Exceptional Individuals
- Y EDSP 742 Interventions: Emotional and Behavioral Disorders
- Y EDSP 743 Interventions: Academic Disabilities
- Y EDSP 745 The Consulting Process in Special Education
- Y EDSP 785 Practicum I (take for graduate credit; completed during the professional semester)

Upon completion of the bachelor's degree, students who want to take additional courses for the full endorsement or to seek the master's degree in special education must submit an online application with the Graduate School (and meet the requirements) to become a graduate student.

Master's Degree in Special Education

Students interested in a master's degree may apply graduate-level courses taken for special education endorsements to the Masters in Special Education. Students seeking the master's degree must complete at least 30 hours of graduate-level course work and successfully present their teaching portfolio.

Program Checklist. There are a number of crucial milestones in the master's degree program. Go to the following website to access the program checklist which provides a guide for student actions throughout the program:

<https://coe.k-state.edu/academics/program-areas/special-education/>

Special Education Master's Portfolio. In lieu of a written master's exam, each master's student in special education will complete a portfolio consisting of 21 professional tasks. The portfolio is a substantive product which also serves as a benchmark in the program. It contains products that a student has developed by fulfilling the requirements of the program. The products that make up the portfolio represent a sample of planning, classroom environment, instruction, and professional responsibilities that are required of personnel in special education. Portfolio tasks were developed as a means to integrate course and professional requirements into relevant and valid outcomes or products.

The portfolio is both an index of program progress and an indicator of a student's readiness to work as a professional special educator. Students should work with their advisor from the early stages of their program to begin the collection of products for their portfolio. During the final semester of their program, students will present their portfolio to a committee of special education faculty.
